

Volunteers improve
TODAY for
TOMORROW

Devon Bullock is from Atlanta, Ga. She is currently a dual major in Environmental Chemistry and Biological Sciences at the University of Georgia. After Devon graduates, she would like to work in watershed management and natural resource conservation. Devon is a campus watershed intern at the UGA Office of Sustainability and says she enjoys using the knowledge she gains in the classroom to help improve the health of our watersheds on campus. At the NRCS in Athens, Devon is working on soil profile models of soil series found across the state of Georgia to be used at educational events aimed at teaching community members the importance of soil health. In her spare time, Devon enjoys horseback riding!